an award winning ecology writer goes looking for the wilderness we've forgotten a green prize winner for sustainable literature many people believe that only an ecological catastrophe will change humanity's troubled relationship with the natural world in fact as j b mackinnon argues in this unorthodox look at the disappearing wilderness we are living in the midst of a disaster thousands of years in the making and we hardly notice it we have forgotten what nature can be and adapted to a diminished world of our own making in the once and future world mackinnon invites us to remember nature as it was to reconnect to nature in a meaningful way and to remake a wilder world everywhere he goes looking for landscapes untouched by human hands he revisits a globe exuberant with life where lions roam north america and ten times more whales swim in the sea he shows us that the vestiges of lost nature surround us every day buy an avocado at the grocery store and you have a seed designed to pass through the digestive tracts of huge animals that have been driven extinct the once and future world is a call for an age of rewilding from planting milkweed for butterflies in our own backyards to restoring animal migration routes that span entire continents we choose the natural world that we live in a choice that also decides the kind of people we are a re-enchantment with the natural world may be a necessary prerequisite to the changes we must make to keep that natural world more or less intact this is deep and lovely thinking and writing new york times bestselling author bill mckibben weaving words into worlds comes as the third spinoff of the international ecopoetics conference organized in Perpignan in 2016 reflecting upon how the many stories we tell directly influence the world we live in each of the contributions in this international volume directs our attention to the constant ecopoetic weaving of word to the world at work via the many entanglements between mind matter and meaning whether on a local or a global scale it encapsulates how the words stories and concepts we humans articulate as we try to make sense of the world we inhabit give part of its shape to the web of ecological relations that we depend on for survival it seeks to cast light on the disenchanting and reenchancing powers of stories and poesis in general as stories retain the power to make us either become oblivious to and destroy or to feel and honor the many complex ties between the multitudinous nature cultures intertwined within the fabric of a multispecies world always in the making this book offers a total of fourteen articles written by international scholars in ecocriticism and ecopoetics who by their analyses of literature and or films and the political subtext they thus render visible aim at showing how the study of environmentally minded media may renew our attention to the entangled agencies of the human and the more than human realm thus this work offers to counter a reproach ecocriticism has often been met with namely the over presence of us scholars and the lack of diversity in subjects in the field since the articles presented provide a wide variety of approaches and topics with examples of uk and native american literature polynesian myth graphic novels or haiku in doing so the book expands on the fields of ecocriticism and ecopoetics adding to this branch of study and enriching it with high quality academic studies
